JANOWICZ HONORED

Vic Janowicz, Ohio State's 1950 Heisman Trophy winner, will be the focal point of today's half-time ceremony in which Mr. John W. Galbreath will present University President Harold L. Enarson with a plaque commemorating the selection of Janowicz to the National Football Foundation Hall of Fame.

This plaque is a replica of the one that will be presented to Janowicz in January when the former OSU great is officially inducted into the Hall of Fame. Also on hand for the presentation is Mr. Richard Kazmaier, President of the Hall of Fame.

The versatile Janowicz played for the Buckeyes in 1949, '50 and '51. He led the team in passing, total offense, scoring and punting in 1950, when he became the second junior to win the Heisman. As a senior, he was the team leader in rushing, scoring and punting.

Attesting to his greatness is the fact that he still holds several Ohio State records.

IN THE HUDDLE

By Steve Snapp

For a guy starting his first college football game, Jim Pacenta was remarkably cool last week at Indiana. Watching the senior quarterback go through his pre-game drills, it was hard to believe that he had played a total of just 59 minutes during his career with the Buckeyes. Rather, he gave the appearance of being a seasoned veteran.

The former all-stater from Akron St. Vincent was just as calm, cool and collected during the game, hitting five of seven passes and guiding the Buckeyes to a convincing 47-7 triumph in a sparkling debut. He looked especially good in the second half, engineering three scoring drives the first four times OSU had the ball. One of those, a 59-yard touchdown toss to Wingback Jim Harrell, was the Buckeyes first scoring strike of the year and the first ever for the 6-3 Pacenta, who went from reserve duty to starting status two weeks ago when Rod Gerald was injured.

The Buckeyes' new field general was generally pleased with his initial showing.

"I had some problems in the first half with the rain and the wet ball" noted the pre-med honor student. "But the rain stopped in the second half and I thought things went pretty well."

CAGERS MEET AUSTRALIANS

Basketball fans can get a sneak preview of the OSU cage squad this Friday at 8:00 p.m. when first-year coach Eldon Miller sends his team against a collection of Australian All-Stars who have reigned as national club champions the past three years in the Land Down Under.

Tickets for the game will be on sale all this week at the St. John Arena Ticket Office and can also be purchased at the door on Friday. The price is $1.50 for students and faculty/staff and $3.00 for the general public.

Buckeye boss Woody Hayes also liked what he saw.

"The longer Jim played the better he seemed to get," Woody pointed out. "There are still some things he has to work on, but we will work those out."

There were some other pleasing aspects of Saturday's contest, which left OSU with a 6-1-1 record and a 5-0 Big Ten mark.

Most notably, the defense turned in its second consecutive strong performance, holding the Hoosiers to 155 yards and one TD. The Buckeyes have surrendered just 10 points in their last two outings now and are back on track after some early season injuries had derailed them.

Too, the OSU coaching staff was able to get freshmen quarterbacks Greg Castignola and Mike Strahine some much needed playing time. The importance of the latter cannot be stressed too greatly because the pair of rookie signal callers are the only other QB's on the OSU roster.

Finally Pete Johnson had his best game since Missouri, rushing for 78 yards and two touchdowns and looking like the Pete Johnson of old. The big Buckeye fullback is a vital cog in the OSU attack and it was encouraging to see his play at Indiana.

Incidentally, Johnson now has 53 career touchdowns, but since bowl games statistics are not recognized by the NCAA, his official total is 49. At this point the current NCAA career mark of 59 (held by Army's Glenn Davis) seems out of reach, but Pete can take some consolation in knowing that his next TD will make him just the fifth player in college football history to score 50 or more six pointers. The other three are Oklahoma's Steve Owens with 56, Cornell's Ed Marinaro with 53 and USC's Anthony Davis with 50.

BACK OF THE WEEK

RON SPRINGS — TAILBACK — A 6-2, 196 pound sophomore, who starred last year at Coffeyville Junior College, Springs had the best day of his still brief Ohio State career Saturday, running for 107 yards and two touchdowns in the Buckeyes' 47-7 win over Indiana. The Williamsburg, Va. native did it all in the second half, too, taking over for Jeff Logan and amassing his total on just six carries for a 17.8 average per try. His long run of the afternoon was a 62-yard jaunt down the sideline on which he just ran by a quartet of stunned IU defenders. On the year, Springs has 248 yards in 42 carries, a fancy 5.9 average per attempt.

LINEMAN OF THE WEEK

CHRIS WARD — OFFENSIVE TACKLE — A sprained ankle forced the big Dayton junior to miss part of the fourth quarter at Indiana, but before being hurt he turned in his best game of the 1976 season, opening one giant hole after another and grading out to a fine 76 percent on the afternoon. His blocking was largely responsible for the success of the Buckeyes running game, especially in the third period when the OSU team scored twice to break open a close game. In his second year as a starter, the 6-3, 279-pound Ward won All-Big Ten and honorable mention All-American honors last year and was the top sophomore lineman in the midwest.

Nick Buonamici Buckeye Defensive Tackle

If you look hard, you might find some who are bigger, but you can look all you want and you won't find any who are any better or any tougher than Nick Buonamici, Ohio State's splendid defensive tackle.

A rock-solid barrel-chested 242 pounder, the 6-3 senior from Brentwood, N.Y. is in his second full season as a starter for the Buckeyes. A consensus all-Big Ten and second team All-American choice last year, Nick figures to gain even greater post-season accolades this year. If not, it will be one of the big surprises of the 1976 campaign.

With the season eight games old, Buonamici has amassed 64 total tackles, recovered a fumble, broken up three passes and has two interceptions. And all of those figures would be much higher if Nick had not sprained a toe against UCLA and been forced to play hurt the past five weeks.

"Most players would have missed a couple of games with the type of injury that Nick has," notes defensive tackle coach Alex Gibbs. "But we couldn't keep Nick out of there if we wanted to. He comes to play and doesn't let a little pain stand in his way."

Buonamici was an inspirational force in the Buckeyes' 34-14 win over Iowa, the game following his UCLA injury.

"Iowa was an important game for us since we were coming off a loss and a tie," Gibbs recalled. "We wanted to get back into the Big Ten portion of our schedule on a successful note and that meant everyone had to play well. It meant a lot to our young players, both on offense and defense, to see Nick going out to play even though they knew he was really in pain."

Buonamici's alertness led to OSU's first score last week against Indiana. After deflecting and then intercepting a Hoosier pass on the OSU five-yard line, Nick rambled to the 35 before handing off to speedster Ray Griffin who then raced the remaining 65 yards for the score.

"I was tempted to keep it, but I wasn't sure I could make it that far," laughed the 20-year old standout. "Running isn't my thing."

Playing defense obviously is and there aren't many around who do it any better.

John DiFelicianantonio Illini Defensive Tackle

John DiFelicianantonio has gained notice in the Big Ten for more than just the length of his name. He also plays a pretty good game at the defensive tackle spot in the Illinois line.

"Cat-quick" is the adjective usually associated with the senior from Philadelphia who seems to prefer spending most of his time in the opposing backfield. He and teammate Dean March led the Big Ten two years ago in the tackles-for-loss category with each collecting 11.

Assorted injuries hampered his effectiveness in 1975 causing him to miss two games completely and cutting down his playing time in two others. However, the 6-3, 240 pounder still stopped ballcarriers behind the line on ten occasions and his eight TFLs in Conference play ranked him fourth in the league.

John D., as the Illinois public address announcer refers to him, this season has picked up where he left off despite being double teamed much of the time. Through the Illini's first six games he again led the team with seven tackles-for-losses and was sixth among tacklers with a total of 33.

Mentioned on numerous pre-season all-Big Ten teams, DiFelicianantonio was a Pennsylvania all-state selection his senior year at Bishop Neumann High School. While there, he was chosen as senior class president and was named the school's outstanding scholar-athlete that year.

HEAD COACH

WOODY HAYES

Woody Hayes and football have become synonymous during the past three decades. So, too, have Woody Hayes and winning.

Hayes, now in his 26th year at Ohio State, is the fourth winningest coach in college football history with 219 victories in 31 seasons. Only Alonzo Stagg, Pop Warner and Bear Bryant have more triumphs than the 63-year old Hayes, who spent three years at Denison and two at Miami (O.) before taking over the Buckeyes in 1951.

Hayes, last year's Coach of the Year when his team won 11 of its 12 starts, has won 186, lost 53 and tied 9 at OSU for a winning percentage of .766. In Big Ten play he owns a 137-33-7 record and has captured 11 conference championships. No other conference school comes close to either figure during the past quarter of a century.

Currently Hayes, who has coached longer in the Big Ten than anyone except Stagg (41-years at Chicago) and Bob Zuppke (29 years at Illinois), is working on a string of four consecutive conference titles and an unprecedented four straight Rose Bowl appearances by the Buckeyes. A Big Ten crown in 1976 would make Ohio State the first team in conference history to win five consecutive championships.

Overall, Hayes, a native of New Philadelphia, O., has taken eight OSU teams to Rose Bowls and produced national championship squads in 1954, 1957 and 1968. His 1969 squad, which posted a 9-1 mark, is generally regarded as one of the finest college football teams ever assembled.

Since Woody has coached at Ohio State, the Buckeye school has led the nation in average home game attendance for 21 of the last 25 years and finished second the other four seasons. At the end of 1975, Ohio State owned a string of 44 consecutive home sellouts.

Hayes has spent his entire coaching career within the state of Ohio. After graduating from Denison in 1935, he accepted a position as assistant football coach at Mingo Junction where he remained until being named head coach at New Philadelphia in 1938. He won 19, lost 10 and tied one at New Philly before joining the Navy in 1941.

Following his discharge, Hayes returned to Denison to embark upon a collegiate coaching career. In the time since, he has become one of the most respected and most successful coaches the profession has ever known.

Reaching 'the last house on the last road'

Serving community educational needs. That's what Ohio State University's Regional Campuses are all about.

Through its campuses at Lima, Mansfield, Marion, and Newark, Ohio State has reached out to extend many of its resources to "the last house on that last road" in more than 24 central Ohio counties, says John T. Mount, Vice President for Regional Campuses.

Many changes have been made since the Autumn of 1957, when the University first opened academic centers in Marion and Newark.

Today, full-time resident faculty teach courses in modern buildings on spacious, scenic campuses. All campuses offer the first two years of courses toward a baccalaureate degree. They also offer a degree in Early and Middle Childhood Education and graduate courses in Education and other fields.

Technical Colleges have joined Ohio State in meeting the educational needs of people in the areas served, and the separately governed colleges share campus facilities.

Mount finds himself in one of the regional campus communities at least once a week, meeting with faculty, students, administrators, and Citizens Advisory Councils made up of local community representatives appointed by University President Harold L. Enarson to help guide regional campuses operations.

Each of the campuses has become a favorite project of their communities, Mount said of a trend which began in the mid-sixties when Lima, Mansfield, Newark, and Marion launched fund raising drives to buy land for the campuses. Each drive substantially exceeded its goal. Lectures, films, art exhibits, and concerts on the campuses, plus nature trails now being developed at Mansfield and Lima, each year draw thousands of visitors to the campuses.

Distances between Columbus and regional campuses range from 35 miles to Newark, to about 90 to Lima, but Mount and his staff have used electronics to shorten the miles. Each campus has a trunk telephone line tied into the Columbus Campus centrex system to eliminate long-distance call tolls. Conference calls and telecopiers are used almost daily.

"The Regional Campuses combine the advantages of the atmosphere of a small college within commuting distance with having access to the resources of a comprehensive University," Mount said.

Above all else, providing two years of high quality collegiate education is the major mission of Ohio State's regional campuses.

Pfeifer Printing Company
"NEARLY A CENTURY OF SERVICE"

Pfeifer Printing means more than just quality printing. We offer complete art and layout services, typesetting, photographic skills, and, of course, fine printing in black and white and color.

What does this mean to our customers? It means one stop service, no running to an agency for art work, to a studio for pictures, to a typesetter for a couple lines of type. This saves time, which in turn saves money.

As Columbus' oldest commercial printing company, we know our business. Feel free to call one of our competent representatives for advice on your next printing job.

NATIONWIDE TIP FOR FALL!

The cooling system in your car is something that merits your attention. Simple preventive maintenance practices and the use of clean 50-50 solutions of ethylene glycol coolant solutions both winter and summer will keep your car running as it should, with fewer repairs and replacements being required, for many, many thousands of extra, trouble-free miles.

Check your car's cooling system this way:

Before the engine is started in the morning and while it is cold, remove the radiator cap and look at the coolant in the radiator. Note the level at which you find it.

If it is low, there is probably a leak in the cooling system somewhere.

If you still have last winter's antifreeze solution in the radiator, look at it carefully. Is it clean? If it is, you may leave it alone until fall's pre-winter servicing.

If, however, the coolant is dirty, contains rust and visible impurities, do drain the entire cooling system and flush it with a cooling system cleanser.

Drain and flush out thoroughly any cleanser used prior to refilling the system with the 50-50 mixture of coolant that you have pre-mixed before pouring into the radiator. (If you have any left over after topping off the radiator, keep it in storage in a sealed container for future make-up of coolant.)

Before filling the radiator with the coolant, check for faulty hoses by squeezing them and look for signs of checking, flaking, breaks, cracks, undue softness or brittleness.

Replace all faulty hoses.

REMEMBER THERE ARE 70 NATIONWIDE AUTO PARTS STORES TO SERVE YOU THROUGHOUT OHIO, INDIANA, N. CAROLINA, VIRGINIA, W. VIRGINIA, KENTUCKY AND FLORIDA. STOP IN ONE SOON.

COACHES' PROFILE

Mickey Jackson—Offensive Backfield

Mickey Jackson joined The Ohio State University football staff July 1, 1974. He coaches the offensive backs and has the rare distinction of coaching a Heisman Award winner each of his two years at Ohio State.

Jackson is a native of Harpers Ferry, West Virginia. He is a 1968 graduate of Marshall University. As an undergraduate, he won six letters, three each in football and track. In 1965, Jackson was fourth in the nation in scoring as a tailback with Marshall.

After graduating from college, Jackson spent two seasons as an assistant coach in high school in Huntington, West Virginia.

In 1970, he returned to Marshall as coach of the offensive backs and receivers, a position he held four years. After the 1973 season, Jackson accepted a position on the Miami staff but moved to Ohio State six months later.

He and his wife, Linda, have two daughters, Carrie and Denise.

John Mummey is starting his eighth year on the Ohio State football staff. He works with the split ends and tight ends and supervises the conditioning program.

Mummey played fullback and quarterback at Ohio State in 1960, '61 and '62. He played fullback as a sophomore in 1960 and moved to quarterback in 1961 and '62. A fine runner, he averaged 5.7 yards per carry in 1961 and 5.6 as a senior in 1962.

He remained at Ohio State in 1963 serving as a graduate assistant in football. In 1964 he taught in junior high school in Painesville, Ohio, and played semi-pro football in Cleveland.

Mummey was head coach at Northridge High, Johnstown, Ohio, for two years and spent the next two seasons at Painesville Harvey High, before joining the Ohio State staff in 1969.

An avid jogger and believer in a weight conditioning program, Mummey analyzes each athlete and prescribes an individual weight program to be followed. This program has noticeably reduced the number of injuries.

John and his wife, Emily, have three sons, Mark, Daryl and Eric.

John Mummey—Offensive Ends

The New Chevrolet

The handwriting was on the wall.

It clearly said that the time had come for a new kind of 6-passenger car. One that would use fuel and space more sparingly, yet still provide the kind of room and ride you've found so comfortable and comforting in our popular full-size Chevys of the past.

The car is here.

It's called The New Chevrolet.

More head room

The New Chevrolet stands a little taller than last year's full-size Chevy, which perhaps explains why it looks so very proud in profile.

Inside, there's a little more clearance for heads and hats and hairdos, both in the back seat and up front.

A new acoustical ceiling helps keep things nice and quiet.

More leg room

We've increased the rear seat leg room by an inch in The Sedan (below) and by nearly two inches in The Coupe.

It will make a significant difference in riding comfort, especially on trips.

The straight-up styling of the car makes it easier to climb into and out of.

More trunk room

The trunk is truly enormous, more than a cubic foot bigger than last year, with a nice flat floor that makes it easy to arrange things.

It's one of many pleasant surprises awaiting you in The New Chevrolet.

More efficient

The New Chevrolet is, by design, a very lean but very strong automobile, with not a trace of flab anywhere on its beautiful body, chassis or frame.

And it pays off at the gas pump.

In EPA tests, The New Chevrolet is rated at 22 mpg highway, 17 mpg city with the new standard Six, auto. trans. and 2.73 axle. Remember, EPA figures are estimates. The actual mileage you get will vary depending on the type of driving you do, your driving habits, your car's condition and available equipment. (In California, EPA mileage figures are lower.)

The New Chevrolet.

We made it right for the times without making it wrong for the people.

You're going to love it.

Chevrolet

Now that's more like it.

The 1977 Caprice Classic Sedan.

ILLINOIS PROFESSOR CREATES LIFE IN A BOTTLE

Prof. Robert L. Metcalf of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign doesn't quite put the universe in a bottle, but he has succeeded in making a very useful model of life conditions compressed into a bottle or a fish tank.

His "model ecosystem" idea has received wide attention and is used in scientific, governmental and industrial laboratories. He grows a miniature cornfield in a big bottle — soil, plants, insects, worms, even mice. Or in the confines of an aquarium he slopes the "ground" down into a pond which is the home of fish.

Then, as in nature, one feeds upon the other.

Then, also as in full-scale life, chemicals — insecticides, pesticides, fertilizers — can be applied. These are "tagged" with radio-active atoms so their path, and their concentration, can be checked from one life form to another.

The model ecosystem provides laboratory studies of the ecological impact of chemicals introduced into the environment. It also provides a way to check new chemicals, including biodegradable compounds to replace insecticides such as DDT which remain in the system and are concentrated as one life form feeds on another.

Metcalf explains that nonbiodegradable compounds are stored in the fat of living organisms and compounded as one feeds on another into amounts 10 million to 10 billion times as concentrated as in the original application. The concentrations of DDT killed fish and birds and made food unsafe for humans.

But in everyday life such problems are not determined for a decade or two. The model ecosystems concentrate the whole problem, with laboratory controls and counters, in a fishtank or a bottle, with results evident in a short period of time.

Metcalf is an alumnus of Illinois who has returned to be one of its leading scientists. He earned bachelor's and master's degrees in entomology from UIUC and a doctorate from Cornell University. His father once headed the UIUC department of entomology.

Metcalf played a key part in establishing the UIUC Institute for Environmental Studies. He has been elected to the National Academy of Sciences and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and has received the Distinguished Service Award of the American Mosquito Control Association, the American Chemical Society's International Award in Pesticide Chemistry and many other honors.

He is a former president of the Entomological Society of America, consultant to the World Health Organization, chairman of the National Science Foundation panel on pesticides, on the subpanel on pesticides of the President's Science Advisory Committee, and in numerous other organizations.

An aquarium tank provides a cross-section of land, air and water life in the model ecosystem developed by Prof. Metcalf.

"Camp Followers" Nurture Grid Sport

by BILL GUTHRIE, Executive Sports Editor

New Haven Register, The Journal-Courier, The Hartford Times

Exactly 100 years ago, Walter Chauncey Camp took a left on Chapel Street and walked to the Yale College campus to attend his first class as a freshman. Football has not been the same since.

Not that Camp was the greatest player of his or any other day. He was an extraordinary halfback, who might have made all-America, but he hadn't invented the all-America concept yet.

He is called the "father of modern American football," but was only a youngster from hometown Hopkins Grammar School when he went out for the Yale football team of 1876, the first Yale team to play by more than rugby rules. Eugene V. Baker, the team captain, had represented Yale, at a meeting to start new modern form of football. Rugby Union rules were modified and a schedule of games among Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Columbia was set. Baker returned to Yale to form a varsity team.

It was the last time until after Camp's death on March 14, 1925 that anyone other than Walter would ever represent Yale at any football meeting. Ironically, Camp died during his sleep in a New York City hotel where he was attending a rules meeting.

Camp made the Yale team as a freshman, not because of size nor strength, but because of his speed and ability to kick the football. Until he instituted the changes in the game, the field was 140 yards long and 70 yards wide. Also, kicking was worth more points than running with the ball so during the two 45-minute halves, a youngster who had kicked a football the two miles to and from prep school daily was a welcome starter at Yale.

Man for All Seasons

Within months, freshman Camp was welcomed to the Yale wrestling team. He also rowed with the crew, ran the hurdles and dashed with the track team, played shortstop, outfield and relief pitcher in baseball and represented Yale in the first intercollegiate tennis tournament.

Until he pushed the undergraduate-only rule through in 1889, intercollegiate athletics were for graduate students, too. So Camp earned six letters in football alone, spending two years in Yale Medical School.

However, for all of his athletic prowess, it is his legislative side of the game that he is long-remembered. Forget the two long touchdowns called back against Princeton in one year. Forget the 35-yard field goal that didn't count against Harvard because the clock ran out while the ball was in the air—illegal in those days.

In his sophomore year at Yale, he went with Baker as a delegate to an intercollegiate football convention. The next year, his first of two as Yale football captain, he became the Yale spokesman on football rules without pause until his death 47 years later. He immediately tried to get the number of players on a side reduced from 15 to 11. He lost in 1878, but won two years later. He also introduced the scoring of a safety, the scrimmage play that replaced the rugby scrum, the changing of the size of the field, the huddle, the quarterback, the down system for retention of the football, tackling below the waist, the neutral zone between the rival lines, etc.

Clock Puncher

After he entered the business world in his native New Haven, he could not go to football practice every afternoon and still work his way up to chairman of the board of the New Haven Clock Co. So that is where Mrs. Walter Camp became his eyes at practice. Mrs. Camp would come home to the same home in which Walter had been born at Gill and Chapel streets and report on what she had seen. After supper, the coach, traditionally the previous year's captain, would come by with his staff. Then Walter would go over changes he felt were necessary. The coaches always listened. Walter's mind was considered that far advanced. And he never singled out a player for instruction or criticism when he was at practice or a Yale game. Instead, he would call aside the coach of that player's position and let the coach tell the player.

Camp's first all-America team, 1889, appeared as a journalistic feature in COLLIER'S WEEKLY. The first team consisted of five from Princeton and three each from Yale and Harvard; but it did not take long for Camp's annual selections to include players from across the nation, as the game itself spread across the nation. He picked the teams until his death in 1925. Then the late Grantland Rice took over the selection of the Walter Camp All-America teams until 1948. The Walter Camp Football Foundation, which annually honors all-Americans in Camp's memory at a dinner in New Haven, took over the supervision of the selections in 1967.

The selection of the 11 best players on an all-America team gave birth to countless imitations and copying of the idea, from all-scholastic teams to 12 Immortals of Literature to the 10 Greatest Men Who Ever Lived to the Six Best Cheeseburgers East of the Mississippi.

Walter Camp made all-America a household word, just as he had done with "quarterback," and many other football-related terms.

Quit His Bloody Studies

When Harford Powel Jr. wrote the authorized biography of "Walter Camp, the Father of American Football," in 1926, he included many references to Camp's toughness on the field and gentleness off of it. Perhaps, none was more surprising of the Father of American Football than the telling of his running into a prep school and college classmate in New York City in 1882 after quitting medical school after two years.

"The fact is," said Walter Camp, "that I can't bear the sight of blood."

The same could be said for President Theodore Roosevelt when 23 years later he saw a picture of Bob Maxwell, a Swarthmore tackle, staggering from the field. The President brought the leaders of the sport together with the threat of a Presidential ban of the game.

So it was that on Jan. 12, 1906, William Reid of Harvard, Capt. Palmer Pierce of Army and Camp of Yale set up the committee out of which came what is known today as the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Upon Camp's death, contributions—from pennies to thousands—were donated for a memorial. That memorial is the Walter Camp Gateway, the entrance to Yale's athletic fields. Etched in stone are the names of all the nation's football-competing colleges of 1925 and some that didn't play the game. They all wanted to say, "Thanks," to the unofficial Yale football coach and official mold of the rules of the game as we know it today.

THAT'S RIGHT . . . WE'RE THE FLAG-WAVERS!

. . . There are all kinds of flag-wavers in this world who wave flags for all sorts of reasons. The Ohio State University Alumni Association, the official organization of graduates and former students of The Ohio State University, has a membership of some 72,000 strong. We stand behind and support the Scarlet and Gray. You can, too, in many different ways. One way, visible to many, is to display a Buckeye Flag.

Each flag measures 3' x 5', a gray block "O" on each side sets on a scarlet field, grommet holes on one end permit easy attaching, and the durable nylon and tackle-twill material means it will be flying long after the game with that "other team."

For each flag, alumni association members should send $12.00. For non-members cost is $15.00. Shipping and tax are included in the above prices. Checks should be made payable to: Ohio State Alumni Association. Send your order to: Ohio State Alumni Association, Alumni House, 2400 Olentangy River Road, Columbus, Ohio, 43210.

BLOCK "O" BOOSTS BUCKEYES

The concept of a card cheering section at football games is not new at the Ohio State University. Buckeye fans were entertained by card sections as long ago as 1919, when the original section livened up old Ohio Field with patterns formed with scarlet and gray cards.

Now the Block "O" section forms patterns, or "stunts" by holding up different colored cards according to previously determined computerized patterns. It's become a tradition at OSU home games to see this enthusiastic student group "flash" its messages around Ohio Stadium.

At the first home football game every year, all 1492 members arrive two hours early. They come to be a part of the magic of Block "O". This is the first chance for many of these young people to discover what a student organization at O.S.U. is like.

Once members are greeted and seated by energetic officers, the excitement never stops. A great deal of cooperation is necessary to maintain such a large organization. One of the Block's greatest assets is the ability to work together as a unit. When Block "O" challenges the south stands to return a cheer or asks the band to play "Sloopy", they receive the cooperation of these other sections of the stadium as well.

Neither rain or snow nor heat or cold ever deadens the spirit of Block "O" members. Throughout the game, these enthusiastic fans cheer the Buckeyes to victory. And every now and then someone asks "why?" Why work so hard preparing stunts and then executing them? And why cheer so wildly for Woody's team? The answer seems to be that games like today's make it all worthwhile!

Administrative Science

Growing enrollments, high ratings

Ohio State's College of Administrative Science is experiencing growth at a rate probably unequalled in the University.

Enrollment in the college has grown 23 per cent in the last two years, says administrative science Dean Edward H. Bowman, and probably no college has a larger evening enrollment.

"Enrollment in business administration programs, including accounting, is increasing all over the country," he says. "It may mean students are choosing to study in college programs that are aimed at particular jobs or careers."

Bowman adds, "I have reason to believe our undergraduate business administration program is as good or better than, for instance, any of the Big 10 schools. In a recent peer-judgement survey of Ph.D. programs, no other public university with a large undergraduate program did better than Ohio State. No Big 10 school did as well."

In that study, published by the University of Chicago's "Journal of Business," Ohio State's doctoral programs in marketing and accounting were ranked fourth and fifth in the nation.

The rating was based on a survey of department chairpersons at colleges and universities belonging to the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business, who listed in order the five schools they believed have the best doctoral and master's degree programs in their academic area of business.

Ohio State's marketing doctoral program was ranked No. 4 behind Northwestern, Stanford, and Purdue. Harvard came in fifth behind Ohio State.

The accounting Ph.D. program finished fifth, ahead of such schools as Harvard, Michigan, California and Michigan State.

Bowman notes that recognition of the doctoral programs points to the excellence of the college's faculty and that excellence should affect undergraduate business programs as well.

Dean Edward H. Bowman believes the growth in his college can be traced to greater interest from students in taking majors that lead them into a particular job or career — in this case, business.

Another area of growth within the college is in the number of minority students enrolled. Bowman says the proportion has grown from 1 to 5 per cent during the last five years. And a minorities assistance program which provides financial aid to qualified, talented and interested minority business students is expected to add to that percentage.

The program, a cooperative effort of the college and the University's Office of Minority Affairs, provides up to a maximum of $2,000 a year per student. The first-year fund-raising goal of $100,000 already has been surpassed through donations from private business.

"It's our hope that the minority assistance program will help to bring students to Ohio State in numbers more representative of the minority population of the state," Bowman says.

A bulletin board crowded with job opportunities could be any college student's dream — and in administrative science, that dream is pretty much a reality. Business hiring increased this year and is expected to rise again next year.

Ohio State Fight Songs

ACROSS THE FIELD

Fight that team across the field,
Show them Ohio's here,
Set the earth reverberating with a mighty cheer
Rah! Rah! Rah!
Hit them hard and see how they fall;
Never let that team get the ball,
Hail! Hail! the gang's all here,
So let's win that old conference now.

CARMEN OHIO

Oh! Come let's sing Ohio's praise,
And songs to Alma Mater raise;
While our hearts rebounding thrill,
With joy which death alone can still.
Summer's heat or Winter's cold,
The seasons pass, the years will roll;
Time and change will surely show
How firm thy friendship O-hi-o.

BUCKEYE BATTLE CRY

In old Ohio there's a team,
That's known thru-out the land;
Eleven warriors, brave and bold,
Whose fame will ever stand,
And when the ball goes over,
Our cheers will reach the sky,
Ohio Field will hear again
The Buckeye Battle Cry —.

Drive! Drive on down the field,
Men of the scarlet and gray;
Don't let them thru that line,
We have to win this game today,
Come on, Ohio!
Smash thru to victory
We cheer you as we go:
Our honor defend
So we'll fight to the end for O Hi o.

Teaching Excellence: A Buckeye Tradition

Ohio State's Big Eight

The University's $1,000 Alumni Awards for Distinguished Teaching, sponsored by the Alumni Association and the Development Fund, recognize and give evidence of the importance placed on superior teaching at Ohio State and provide encouragement and incentive for teaching achievement. A committee of four students, five faculty members and one alumna selected this year's eight winners based on student, faculty and alumni nominations. Two of the University's 1976 Distinguished Teachers are profiled here.

The scratching sounds of furious note-taking are virtually absent in Leroy Krajewski's classes.

Krajewski, an associate professor of management science, hands out highlights of his lectures in production and operations management so his students "can listen to the material, think of questions and actually participate in the discussion," he explains.

Krajewski's methods must have worked during his seven years at Ohio State.

"I've enjoyed a good, close tie with most of my classes," he says. "That's been possible because most of the sections I teach are not large lectures, but small, upper-and-graduate level courses."

He describes his teaching style as predominantly lecture-discussion. "The handouts are the critical thing," he maintains. "Some courses require as many as 120 pages of handouts per student, which means a pretty high photocopying bill. But I feel it's worth it, and so does my department."

And, "I think making oneself ready and available to help is extremely important. Accessibility is the key."

Two constant and related battles any instructor faces, Krajewski believes, are motivating students and showing the relevance of classroom materials to the practical world.

"One has to provide not only the theoretical foundation but also the intuitive understanding of why these things are done as they are," he says.

Krajewski's recent research interests have involved several management studies for the troubled U.S. Postal Service. He has designed and developed two methods courses for postal managers, and has worked to identify deficiencies in postal logistics systems.

Krajewski received his B.S. in mathematics, M.S. in production and Ph.D. in production management at the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

David Shapiro

"I'd like to think getting this award is not simply popularity, but that my own enthusiasm for teaching comes across in class," says David Shapiro, assistant professor of economics.

"I really enjoy an environment where the primary emphasis is on learning — I'm a learning freak. The first thing I would like to give to my students is an enthusiasm for learning," he says.

"Second would be to get them oriented to a critical analysis of ideas. In my tests, I emphasize people being able to integrate various parts of a course, not to simply go back and remember."

Shapiro teaches courses in labor economics and in population. He has been departmental honors adviser since 1972 and often teaches small honors classes, including an honors seminar, which he instituted.

To teach, he says, "I do a great deal of preparation. I write out my lecture notes almost as if I were giving a speech, and look at them before class. I photocopy the notes and put them in the library so students have access to them.

"I like to involve the class and strongly encourage participation," Shapiro adds. "I enjoy students, interacting with students. I make a fairly concerted effort to get to know at least the names of all my students, even in a large class.

"Teaching interests me because it provides me with an opportunity to expose students to ideas — no, a better way to put it is share ideas. There's also a part where I learn from them."

Shapiro's skill in the classroom was recognized before at the President's Scholarship Recognition Dinner in 1974. He received his B.A. from the University of Michigan with election to Phi Beta Kappa and his M.A. and Ph.D. from Princeton. He joined the Ohio State faculty in 1971.

Insta-Focus® — the only binoculars that keep fast moving action in focus.

FINGERTIP INSTANT FOCUSING

Try using ordinary binoculars to follow the Quarterback fading back for a pass and then switching to a wide receiver sprinting into the end zone. Can't be done. Because no matter how good your binoculars are, you miss a lot of the action if you can't change focus fast enough.

Bushnell's unique Insta-Focus ends this problem forever. With Insta-Focus you can change focus as often as you want — instantly. Bushnell binoculars with Insta-Focus are the only binoculars made specifically for the fan of fast moving sports action. Racing, hunting, bird watching, anything. See them for yourself in better camera and sporting goods stores everywhere.
